OLD POSTCARD STARTER KIT

Before the onset of telephones, most folk communicated by post. In 1900, the Post Office provided a reduced cost mailing service for postcards, costing one half penny! (½d). Thus a message card could be sent in the morning and delivered the next day or even later the same day in many cities. Postcard manufacturers published thousands of different topographical cards and postcard collecting became very popular. Today some cards are valued at many hundreds of pounds. We offer a good quality album to hold and display up to 200 old style postcards together with a collection of 20 different old (pre-1940) postcards of different subjects. Each album has a padded binder and safety clip.
